Collection of best practices in Early Childhood Intervention

In the framework of EASPD's project "Technical Support to implement reforms to support the development of family centred early childhood intervention services in Greece" (Grant Agreement n° 101048313) and funded by Commission Directorate-General for Structural Reform Support (DG REFORM), we are looking for models of best practices in the area of Early Childhood Intervention from various providers across Europe supporting children with disabilities and their families.

The practices submitted will be evaluated by the ECI Greece project team and the chosen practices will be published in a report. This report will serve as service models for relevant organisations in Greece and guide positive legislative initiatives.

What is a best-case practice in Early Childhood Intervention?

Early intervention is a system of coordinated services that promotes the child's age-appropriate growth and development and supports families during the critical early years. As a best-case practice in ECI, we define an intervention that produces optimal results in maximising the child's physical, cognitive, and social/emotional development while respecting the diversity of families and communities.

In order to be eligible, the best practice on ECI should:

- Recognise the central role the family plays in a child's life. All families are encouraged to be included and contribute to their child's learning and development.
- Be inclusion focused. The practice promotes the engagement of all children, regardless of their needs, in all aspects of life. Therefore, it fosters learning in natural environments such as daily routines, at home, and in the community.
- Adopt evidence and outcome-based approaches. Early childhood intervention professionals provide services that are grounded in research and clinical reasoning.
- Include well trained professionals from various disciplines and different backgrounds as to meet the diverse needs of targeted children and ensure quality teamwork.

To submit a best practice on early childhood intervention, please complete the following online Google form.
