

As social policies have advanced, demands for social housing have increased as persons from marginalised groups look for a place to live a normal life in society.

In many cases the allocation and assessment systems are not well suited to deal with the current range of people who were not usually seeking housing when they were designed.

TOPHOUSE is a project that aims to define the competences of professionals in the assessment, housing and support/care sector to strengthen their ability to:

FOSTER INCLUSION and RESPECT for human rights of persons at risk of exclusion, particularly persons with disabilities

WORK MORE EFFECTIVELY and CONSTRUCTIVELY with complex needs of service users
